

THEY COME FREE

By Nythell "Nate" Collins

I believe mental and emotional health is true wealth and everything else is a distraction from one's self. My essence was lost in the game of misfortune and fame. I hold the unfortunate blame because I sacrificed my life to the small portions I gained. But as I fall I rise by the palms of my own hands. I am a grown man. Don't need them to clap for me for I am my own fan defying the expectations and judgments of those who hate me. Only he who is perfect can judge sins until then this life, a fence me to the borders of insanity annually in my thoughts understandably I'm candidly speaking to broken hearts. If the price I got to pay for a debt is my own flesh then yes, I'm prepared to be blessed with my own death. Tossed to a new religion, forced from a Jew to Christian, regrets I got a few, then again too few to mention.

CHORUS: We are all different, on different paths but got the same inclination to live in peace, pursue happiness, prosper threw generations. But nothing is perfect on earth's surface, what's worthless is what we purchase, the best thing in life, they come free, charity, hope, purpose.

Discrimination in a nation, maybe that's an indication when chasing things outside of ourselves we become biased which leads to no indignation. My perspective is universal I'm driven to pivot bigots. Your perception, a change about me and my life, if you could have lived it, it's livid, how I spit it, I did it, beyond measure, beyond the pressures of race, gender and class. Love is the greatest treasure. What has been rice to me is those who was cruel to adversity, don't discourage me, they have been jewels to me, cognitive read to me, those who are rude to me, my response is peaceful for all people are equally viewed to me.

CHORUS: We are all different, on different paths but got the same inclination to live in peace, pursue happiness, prosper threw generations. But nothing is perfect on earth's surface, what's worthless is what we purchase, the best thing in life, they come free, charity, hope, purpose.